CALL FOR PAPERS

Colombia Internacional, the academic journal published by the Department of Political Science at the Universidad de los Andes in Bogotá, is looking for manuscripts for its special edition on Environment and Security.

The relationship between environmental and natural resource aspects and security and stability is the object of increasing attention. Natural resources are major factors in conflict dynamics and climate change is largely regarded as an impending threat multiplier.

In this context, manuscripts may focus, among others, on the following topics:

- Empirical studies on the relationship between peace, security and environment and natural resources in Latin America. To what extent can climate change and natural resource availability (scarcity or abundance) and distribution affect security and drive conflict in the region?
- What specific risks and vulnerabilities exist in the region? How can situations of conflict or instability emerge and escalate in the presence of these conditions? How can these vulnerabilities be further aggravated by climate change and natural resource competition?
- How can environmental paths contribute to building peace?

Formal requirements for manuscripts:

- Submission by email attachment to colombiainternacional@uniandes.edu.co or c.vargas126@uniandes.edu.co
- Formatting must meet the formal requirements of the journal, which can be found at <http://colombiainternacional.uniandes.edu.co>
- They must be submitted by October 31st, 2012
- Articles will be published after an academic peer review process
- Original manuscripts can be submitted in Spanish, English, or Portuguese
